Paul is on his way to a baseball game. He sees a tow truck on the side of the road helping a motorist. It's safe for him to move to the left lane of the highway.

What should Paul do?

Under Pennsylvania law, when approaching an emergency response area, you must move to a lane of traffic not directly beside or adjacent to the emergency response area.

*If you cannot safely and legally move to a nonadjacent lane, you must slow to a reasonable speed while passing the emergency response area.
